We think they can be designed in a slightly more modern manner, while maintaining the over-all harmony with the rest of the windows.

We have started on the Gospel side nearest the altar, continuing back to the altar on the Epistle side. Of course this arrangement can readily be changed.

The first group is devoted to Saint Peter with his keys and just a suggestion of the inverted cross at his back; Saint Andrew holdshis distinctive diagonal cross; and Saint James with pilgrim's hat and shell, carries the traveler's staff and purse. The flash of lightning suggests the perils of pilgrimage.

In the next, Saint John holds his traditional chalice and serpent recalling the legend of the poisoned cup from which he drank without harm; SaintPhilip has his crossed staff and basket of loaves in reference to his remark when Our Lord fed the multitude; Saint Bartholomew holds the flaying knife.symbol of his martyrdom, while a cross is again suggested in further reference to his martyrdom.

On the opposite side, Saint Thomas bears the traditional carpenter's square and spear; Saint Matthew the battle-ax and table with the proceeds from customs; and Saint James the Less robed as first Bishop of Jerusalem, the tall cross.

The final group is devoted to Saint Jude with book, in the symbolic sail-bost of his missionary journeys; Saint Simon with the saw, symbol of his martyrdom, and the traditional book and fish; while Judas Iscariot completes the group with Satan offering his reward.
